"I am loving this tour of America Robert & Mary. Greenbrier opened my eyes, Newport was fun to learn about, had no idea about new NY Legoland, Chicago is one of my most favorite cities, Washington DC was moving around 9/11 and now Maui! OMG!! I can't wait to get back there and just loved hearing today's show. Kudos and can't wait for next location."

"I lived just a few miles away in Paukukalo Hawaiian Homestead where things of my kūpuna would appear out of the sand dunes. As our kuleana we would care for them."

Maui has an important sacred, cultural area known as Waihe'e Coastal Dunes and Wetlands Refuge that has evidence of humans going back to 950 A.D. Today these 277 acres are a protected habitat and coastal area that the public can visit, learn its rich history and hike along trails. We visited with Dr. Scott Fisher, the Chief Conservation Officer of The Hawaiian Islands Land Trust on day 3 of Stop #6 on our special "Let's Go America! Tour" to learn more about this important cultural site...Hawai'i Land Trust
